BATTERY PARK CITY AUTHORITY RELEASES SUMMER 2017 EVENTS CALENDAR

More than 600 Programs and Events Open to All

The Battery Park City Authority (BPCA) today announced release of its Summer 2017 Parks Programming Calendar, detailing more than 600 public programs and events for the whole family scheduled across Battery Park City from May through August. The full calendar of mostly-free, indoor and outdoor programs – including live concerts and dance festivals, storytelling and art workshops, athletic events, nature and exercise classes, and more – is available via the Battery Park City Parks website, and is being sent to all BPC Parks mailing list subscribers this week.

“There’s no place like Battery Park City and with over 600 programs to satisfy the young and young at heart, summer is the season to enjoy the best we have to offer,” said BPCA President and Chief Operating Officer Shari C. Hyman. “Whether you’re jamming with Grammy-winning artists at our River & Blues concerts in Wagner Park, stimulating your classical muse with our new ‘Strings-on-Hudson’ music series on the Esplanade, or stirring your soul at our sunset singing circles, there’s so much to spark the senses along our spectacular waterfront.”

The Summer 2017 Parks Programming Calendar features more than 20 illustrated pages of program offerings happening throughout Battery Park City, organized by those of interest to guests of all ages, to teens and adults, seniors, school-aged children, and preschoolers. Programming will take place across the neighborhood, from the BPC Ball Fields, Rockefeller and Wagner Parks, and 6 River Terrace, to Esplanade Plaza, Belvedere Plaza, South Cove, and the Community Center at Stuyvesant High School. The calendar also includes a map of key Battery Park City locations, restrooms, and art installations as well as information about how the public may reserve space at various BPC event facilities.
